The will

One day young William was called to a lawyer's office. The lawyer announced that William's uncle had left him a thousand dollars. He also added that William was required to give the lawyer a report of how he used the money as soon as he spent it. That was his uncle's last wish.

William promised to follow his uncle's wish and went straight to his club. He looked for Bryson, a calm wise man of about forty, who was sitting in a corner reading a book. When William told him about the contents of the will, Bryson did not seem at all surprised. He only remarked that the uncle was worth about half a million.

William told Bryson that his uncle had left a lot of money to charity while his servants had received only ten dollars each. There was one more person mentioned in the will, Miss Hayden, a distant relative who lived in the uncle's house. She was a quiet, musical girl and the dearest woman in the world to William. William had been in love with her for two years but he had never told her about his feelings.

William had no idea how to spend a thousand dollars and he hated making the report. He had a feeling that his uncle was making fun of him.

In the street William saw a blind man selling pencils. William went up to him and asked him what he would do with the money. The blind man shrugged his shoulders and said that he had never seen such a huge amount of money and therefore had never had the problem of spending such a sum. William bought all his pencils and gave him ten dollars above the price.

William was walking down the empty street when he had an idea.

He got into a cab and went to his uncle's house where Miss Hayden lived. He found her, sad and beautiful, writing letters in the library. William knew that like the servants she had received nothing from his uncle but ten dollars. So he said that there was an addition to his uncle's will that allowed her to have a thousand dollars and he gave her the money there and then. Miss Hayden turned white, took the banknotes and put them in the drawer of the writing desk. Then she quietly thanked William and gave him a shy smile.

In excitement William went back to the lawyer's office, ready to hand over the report.

Suddenly the lawyer took out another document which had been given to him by William's uncle and started reading. It said that in the case that William spent the money wisely, he was to receive another fifty thousand dollars. On the contrary, if he had spent it in a foolish way, the fifty thousand would go to Miss Hayden.

Smiling brightly, William destroyed the report and said he had lost a thousand dollars on the races. William realized that he was going to lose much more than that, but he felt happy about it.

- 1. Bryson was a friend of William's uncle.
- 2. William's uncle left all his money to his servants.
- 3. Miss Hayden arrived at the uncle's house two years ago.
- 4. William asked the blind man for advice.
- 5. William told Miss Hayden a lie about his uncle's will.
- 6. Miss Hayden refused to take a thousand dollars offered by William.
- 7. William made Miss Hayden a rich woman.

Text A

Dear visitors! We're doing our best to make our park a nice place for everyone. Please, be aware that you can borrow a bike for free. To the right of the main entrance you'll see a large glass house in which you can find out what life in the tropics feels like. The greenhouse is inhabited by nearly a thousand butterflies, which you can see for only £5. Children under sixteen have discounts. Don't miss a chance to see our free exhibition of retro photos of the city in the central alley.

Text B

Hi, dad. I want to share some news. You wanted me to take a French course, so I did that. I was at the language school and took a test for the level. The test didn't take me long. I know nothing, and, of course, they defined my level as a beginner. And placed me into the lowest group but in that group I saw Paul, my old friend from primary school. We both were very glad to meet up again after so many years. I believe taking a language course with Paul will be real fun, don't you?

Text C

Speaker 1: I believe this fishing rod is just what grandpa wants. Don't you think so?

Speaker 2: I'm not sure. He enjoys fishing, right, but grandma worries so much that he might catch a cold when he goes to the lakes and so do I. You know how careless grandpa can be.

Speaker 1: Yes, things like nasty weather, cold and rain can never stop him from going fishing. One day he got home absolutely frozen. His coat and sweater were wet through.

Speaker 2: It seems to me I know what to buy to please both grandpa and grandma! A pair of long warm rubber boots for fishermen.

Speaker 1: Good idea! The boots grandpa wears are really not waterproof. He needs better ones.

Text D

Kate: Hi, Ron! I called you on Sunday but you didn't answer. Were you out of town?

Ron: Yes, we went to the city for a brief entertaining trip, as mum called it.

Kate: Wow! Was it fun?

Ron: Absolutely not. I had plans to see the motoraces, they've just built a new mototrack, and you know how much I like motorbike competitions but my sister spoils a whole day.

Kate: How could she? She is a sweet little girl.

Ron: She is, but she wanted to go to the zoo. Mum could not disappoint her.

Kate: I'm so sorry, but it's not the worst scenario ever. When we went for a holiday last time, I got a cold and spent six days inside in the hotel room.
