Dialog A.

- Sorry, I'm a bit late!
- Never mind, I've just arrived myself. How was your day?
- Tough. And I feel really hungry. Have you ordered anything yet?
- I'm going to have a salad and a coffee. But you should have something more substantial.
- I will. Just let me have a look. Ok. I'll have a green salad and some chicken with potatoes and a dessert.
- They serve a very tasty toffee pudding, you should try it.

Dialog B.

- I don't approve of this habit of yours.
- Which one this time?
- Eating while watching TV.
- Why? What's wrong with it?
- You can't control the amount of food you consumed when you watch a film. You have already finished two bowls of pop corn and a chocolate bar.
- And what? School is really hard and I need to relax.

Dialog C.

- It was a good idea to get out of the city. Look, the kids are happily flying their kite.
- Yeah, and they had a hearty meal. I don't remember them ever eating with such appetite at home.
- The sandwiches were really good. I liked the baked potatoes very much too.
- They were burned a bit, but they were ok anyway.
- Could you pass me an apple please? It's a pity we have to go off soon, they promised the light rain in the evening.

Dialog D.

- Apple, tomato juice or mineral water for you, sir?
- Mineral water, without gas.
- Hear.
- There is something wrong with my seat. I can't put it in the right position.
- Just let me see. Press this button on your left.
- Oh, thanks. Now it's fine. Are you serving lunch soon?
- Yes, in a few minutes. The cart with the lunch boxes is almost ready
